1. The airfield was about two miles southeast of Lida (25°17'E/53°53'N), White Russian SSR, about a mile east of the railroad line. There was a brickyard west of the field with a railroad spur track leading to the landing field (see Annex).
The field was surrounded by woods.
2. The landing field had a firm grass cover. No concrete runways were seen.
3. Two hangars were on the northern edge of the field.
4. The field was occupied by about 60 high-wing monoplanes with the marking "HAF" (HAP).
5. The field was guarded by Soviet Army sentries.
